

Key Messages

The people of Pittsburgh, perhaps better than most, understand that restoration of the natural environment and increasing biodiversity play an important role in economic recovery.

The story of Pittsburgh's transformation can best be told by our three rivers — in our journey to reclaim them and to embrace the biodiversity they bring to our community.

As a long-standing innovator in energy and the environment, the Pittsburgh region is uniquely positioned to provide the sustainable solutions for the future.